A LAMENTABLE DEATH.

Mrs. Georgia R. Shelton Sinks to Rest Monday Afternoon at Her Home, This City.

THE WHOLE TOWN IN MOURNING.

Monday afternoon, about the hour of sun set, Mrs. Georgia R. Shelton, the youngest daughter of the late Dr. Geo. J. Reed, D. D., and Mary Reed looked upon home scenes for the last time and resignedly met her God. While her death was not unexpected, it brought sorrow to every household in Columbia, as she was a woman of a lovely disposition, having lived a pure and Godly life from early girlhood to the hour of her departure.

In 1864 her father removed from Shelbyville, Ky., to this place, having been called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church. At that time the subject of this writing was one year old, having been born March the second, 1863. It was here that she grew to womanhood, and where she attended the M. & F. High School until she was about sixteen years old. She then entered a female college at Shelbyville, graduating from that institution when she was about nineteen years of age.

June 20, 1888, she was married to Mr. John T. Shelton, a gentleman of high character, and soon thereafter they took up their residence in Tennessee, Mr. Shelton engaging in the grocery business. In about six years after marriage, her husband died, leaving her two sons. She then returned to Columbia, where she permanently resided until her death. Her youngest son, who was named for his father, died at Maryville, Tenn., where he was attending college, three years ago. Her only surviving bodily heir is her son, Mr. Reed Shelton, of this place, who is grieved beyond expression for the loss of a good mother, a wise counselor, one he consulted about every thing touching his interest, and while her death has fallen heavily upon all those who were near to her by the ties of blood, the greatest sorrow comes to the devoted son, who is almost heart-broken.

No death has occurred in recent years that brought more sorrow to the people of Columbia where the life of the deceased was known to be spotless and pure, a devoted member of the Presbyterian church from early girlhood. Such a life as she lived is certainly comforting to her son, her sister, Miss Octavia, her two brothers, Walton and E. W. Reed. May God pour the balm of grief into their sorrowing hearts. The funeral services will be in the Presbyterian church this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Birthday Dinner.

Mr. Sam Ed Squires, who lives about four miles from Columbia, was sixty-six years old the 22nd of August, and the occasion was duly celebrated. Mrs. Squires prepared a most sumptuous dinner, all the children, nine in number, being invited and a few special friends. While the dinner was highly enjoyable, the reunion brought untold pleasure, straightened wrinkles in the faces of the aged parents, and bringing many happy expressions from those who were taught in infancy to honor their father and mother, that their days might be long upon the earth.

Fell Dead.

A daughter of John Hadley, who lived on Sulphur Creek, near McGaha, this county, fell dead last Saturday. She was en route to the spring and seeing a small child at the watering place, she started in a run, fell, and was dead when members of her family reached her. She was about fourteen years old.

Dunbar & Hurt the column manufacturers, of this place, will remove their plant to Lebanon about the first of October. They have leased the old Royer Wheel Company's buildings in which to start their plant. We regret very much to lose this enterprise, as it paid out quite a sum of money annually for timber.

Allen, a little son, four years, of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Miller, fell from a horse late Friday afternoon and has been critically ill since. He is a great favorite, and the town is in sympathy with the parents.

For Sale.

I will sell at public outcry Saturday the 9th, two work mules and all my household and kitchen furniture.

County High School Begins September 11th.

The public schools of Columbia, including the county High School and the Graded School, begin Monday, September 11th.

The present generation of boys and girls of the county have a great opportunity of obtaining an education. No previous generation of the county has had the privilege of obtaining a high school education free. All pupils of Adair county in school age, who have completed the common branches, are given free tuition in this school by the county. How many will take advantage of the opportunity?

Enroll in September! No new classes begin after the Christmas holidays. It is nearly impossible to enroll at the middle of the year and do the work.

Let all the pupils of the graded school district be on hand. We want to have two-hundred present the first day. Our school building has been cleaned from top to bottom and is awaiting us. A big flag will be floating from the top of the building to bid every boy and girl welcome. Our new piano will be there and every boy and girl should be anxious to hear it played the first tune in chapel. This is going to be our best year thus far. Let every pupil be present on the first day.

W. M. Wilson, Supt.

Russells Creek Association.

The next session (The one hundredth and seventh annual session) of the Russells Creek Association, Kentucky Baptist, will convene at the Greasy Creek Baptist church, 10 miles south of Greensburg, in Green county, Ky., on Wednesday the 4th day of October 1911, at 10 o'clock a. m.

All the churches of the Association are earnestly requested to be on hand promptly at the opening of the session, and come prepared to stay until the close. It is probable that this session of the Association will last three days. A full attendance of the ministers of the Association are requested. This is expected to be a most interesting and important session.

Among the visiting brethren who expect to be present, will be some of the ablest preachers of the southland.

All Brethren who are on committees to report at this next session, are requested to have their report of their respective committees ready.

Notice.

The voters of the Elroy voting precinct No. 6, in Adair county, Ky., are hereby notified that at the regular State election to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 7th, 1911, the question will be submitted to said voters, as to whether or not cattle or other species thereof, shall run at large in said voting precinct.

The Institute.

All the teachers of the county reported to the superintendent last Monday morning, and the institute is now in full headway. An able educator, Prof. Craig, is the conductor, and doubtless he will give the teachers many valuable points, and that their coming together will result beneficially to all concerned. McHenry Rhodes is to deliver a lecture Wednesday evening, and Mrs. Charles P. Weaver, of Louisville, will also address the institute during the week.

Forced To Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup—all Throat and Lung troubles. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free at Paul Drug Co.

Died in Louisville.

Mr. Jo Baker, son of Dr. T. T. Baker, Cole Camp, Cumberland county, the well-known traveling salesman, died suddenly in Louisville Monday night. The remains will pass through here today, en route to his former home. The particulars of his demise have not reached Columbia.

Mrs. Mary Biggs bought of J. B. Barbee eight and one-half acres of land, adjoining her premises, at $100 per acre.

Eloped to Jeffersonville.

Mr. Geo. W. Cook, who lives about one mile from Columbia, on the Greensburg road, eloped for Jeffersonville, Ind., with a Miss Jeans, a daughter of Wes Jeans, last Monday morning. By the time this paper reaches its readers they will evidently be married. Mr. Cook is between fifty and sixty years old and the girl about seventeen. Mr. Cook's action was a surprise to his friends.

On account of the age of the girl Mr. Cook was refused licenses at Jeffersonville and Louisville. The couple will likely arrive in Columbia tonight.

On Saturday, the 16th of September there will be a colt show at Breeding, the colts to be the get of Raven Bird. A premium of $10.00 will be given on the best colt. Also a $5.00 premium will be given for the best mare colt, the get of my Jack. Mr. A. S. Humble, a former Russell county citizen, was the general manager, and he was busy from start to finish. The President Dr. Richardson, proved a very courteous gentleman and took great interest in all exhibits. There was excellent order throughout the meet, and every body left for their respective homes well satisfied as to the judgment of the Judge, Mr. W. H. Flowers, of Adair county.

For Sale.

I desire to sell my stock of millinery goods at greatly reduced prices. The stock is clean and desirable. I will also sell my rubber tier buggy, comparatively new, a good wheelbarrow and a first-class lawn mower. I will take pleasure in showing the above named articles.

Mrs. Lou W. Atkins,
Columbia, Ky.

The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., represented by J. E. Murrell, does not write a non participating policy. It is a dividend paying company. A non participating policy means that you pay the same every year; a dividend paying policy means that your premium is reduced each year. A non participating policy will cost you a few dollars less than a participating policy for the first premium but a dividend policy catches the non participating policy after the first payment, and continues its reductions to the end of the period. Which policy is the most desirable?

Some person shot a fine mule, the property of Mr. R. F. Paull, during the week of the Fair. The mule was on Mr. Paull's farm, and it was shot in the head. The owner worked with the animal several days before it died. Mr. Paull cannot think of any one who would wantingly destroy his property, and the supposition is, that some person was riding along the road, recklessly firing his revolver.

Death at Dulworth.

Mrs. Rachel Monroe, aged 36 years, the wife of Mr. Pleasant Monroe, died at her late home at Dulworth, Adair county, last Thursday night. She was a very excellent woman, and had been afflicted about four months. Besides her husband, she leaves three children. A great man, friends attended the funeral and interment.

On account of the address of Prof. McHenry Rhodes at the Court House Wednesday night we shall hold our prayer meeting at the Baptist church at 7:15 p. m. Let every one come and we shall be through in time for the lecture.

Mrs. Virginia Johnston Dead.

Mrs. Virginia Johnston, widow of the late S. D. Johnson, prominent lawyer of Louisville, died at her late home on 7th street between Magazine and Broadway, on August 26, 1911. She was born in 1811, on Robertson creek, Taylor county, and was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church. Her husband preceded her to the grave about 8 years ago. She had many friends and relatives in Adair county, having resided in Columbia a number of years. She leaves many relatives including Mrs. A. I. Hurt, who is a niece, and Miss Bettie McCorkle, a cousin, of this place. After the funeral services the body was interred in the city cemetery.

On Wednesday evening of last week a number of young people gathered at the Jasper Hotel and enjoyed a very successful "tacky party." The costumes were "killing" and it was hard to decide who played their part the best.

Mr. Fred Hill, Miss Myrtle Myers;
Mr. Tom Judd, Miss Madge Rosenfield;

A few days ago the children and grand children and a few special friends met at the home of Mrs. M. J. Lawless, in Russell county, and gave her a surprise dinner, she being 57 years old.

Those present besides the immediate family were Dr. W. G. D. Flanagan and wife, Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Harris. The day was enjoyably spent by all present and to make Mrs. Lawless a more complete surprise, her daughter Mrs. Nora Myers, of Greenwood, Ind., arrived just at the noon hour. Mrs. Lawless was the recipient of many presents.

The Lindsey-Wilson opened this morning with a full corps of teachers. We learn from the principals that every thing points to a very successful year. Pupils will arrive weekly from now until corn gathering is over, and before the end of fall there will be pupils on the hill by the hundreds. The dormitories are in readiness and comfortable accommodations will be provided for all who will matriculate.

I desire to remind the members of the Adair County Pastor's Association that there is to be a meeting of this body, Monday, Sept. 11th at ten o'clock a. m. at the M. E. church-South in Columbia. Matters of importance are to be considered and every pastor in the county is invited so be present.

A Terrific Battle—Eats 'm Alive.

Mr. W. T. McFarland, Mayor of this city, reports a fierce encounter between a chicken, frying size, and a snake. On last Saturday he noticed a chicken making a heroic effort to pass through this world, and found that a snake about a foot long had seized it near its head, and was hanging on. The chicken ran until it could not further go, and at this juncture the fowl began pecking the tail end of the snake and soon had it all swallowed except about two inches, and the snake was still clinging to the chicken's feathers near its head. This condition lasted for a few minutes, the chicken trying to swallow, and snake trying to get out. Finally the reptile let loose, and was soon in the craw of the chicken.

Owing to the very low price of wheat some of our farmers have been feeding wheat to hogs, some of them realizing as much as $1.50 per bushel in this way. It seldom pays to sell grain or feed of any sort off the farm. A better price may usually be obtained by feeding crops to stock on the farm, besides we retain the soil the plant food it has yielded to the plant which is a matter of vast importance to the farmer.

JUDGE O'REAR'S INSINCERITY.

Judge O'Rear has never made a speech since the campaign opened that he has not questioned the sincerity of the Democrat candidates, and the platform upon which they are standing. He is evidently of the opinion that if he can get it firmly into the minds of the voters that he is the only candidate who is in earnest, that he will gain enough votes thereby to insure his election. It is only necessary to cite one case to prove that Judge O'Rear has not a sincere bone in his body. Take his humiliating surrender to Senator Bradley as an example.

In a speech at Lexington before the Republican State Convention met he did not hesitate to charge that the "third house" was guilty of corruptly influencing the election of United States Senator. He did not mention Bradley's name, but every body knew he meant Governor Bradley, and it is a matter within the knowledge of a number of people that Bradley called Judge O'Rear to account for making the accusation. When the Republican Convention met and Bradley's wide popularity with Republicans was shown, as it is always shown in state conventions, Judge O'Rear saw the necessity of placating the real leader, and did it in a way that reflected both on his courage and his sincerity. He not only pronounced Bradley "the greatest living Kentuckian," but assured the delegates that his election to the United States Senate was without a blot or a stain.

When Bradley was elected by recreant Democrats influenced by a corrupt lobby, Judge O'Rear was on the Court of Appeals bench, and sat day after day beneath the same roof where this scandalous conspiracy was carried out. If he did not have personal knowledge of how it was done he was in position to have known what every intelligent person in Frankfort knew—that Bradley could not have won without a deal with the lobby that would not bear the light of day. Judge O'Rear's career shows that he always keeps his ears to the ground and his nose lifted in the direction of the wind, with an eye peeled for the main chance, and if he did not see and hear and smell what was going on at Frankfort during that disgraceful session which culminated in Bradley's election, then he lacks the intelligence and the foresight to be Governor of Kentucky, and it would not be safe to trust him in that high office for the lobby would steal the State House from under his eyes without his knowledge.

Unchain the Dog.

An exchange says: Picture men are working again in some parts of the country. You give these fellows the picture of some member of the family. They promise to enlarge and beautify it, giving your little one rosy cheeks and the fairest of faces, for a meek song. If you let them get this inch you will find there is a good long ell hitched to the other end, when an altogether different man comes back with the picture, which you can get only by buying a costly frame. HUMOR OF THE DAY

Had It on His Mind.

A clergyman tells the following story:

"A young man came up to me one day with the remark, 'Parson, I want you to marry me next Wednesday.'"

"All right, I'll marry you."

"And I want the church bell to ring."

"Yes, you can have the bell rung."

"And the organ played."

"All right, you can have the organ."

"And I want everything else anybody ever had at a church wedding."

"You shall have it."

"Well, the day came, the bell rang, the organ played, the church was crowded and everything went off as the young man wanted it. When the ceremony was over the young couple waited instead of leaving the church, so I shook hands with the bride and then held my hand out to the bridegroom."

"He had his hand deep in his trousers pocket, and as I stood with mine out he said somewhat impatiently and in a tone that could be heard all over the church:

"I'm getting the money out as fast as I can."

"Then everybody in the church giggled."—Tit-Bits.

Minister—That's right. And what if you told the truth?

Tommy—I'd get the devil.—Toledo Blade.

FALLING COCOANUTS.

Dew Makes Most of Them Drop From the Trees at Night.

"In the tropics when the coconut is wanted for planting," said an importer of the fruit, "the nuts are picked up when they fall from the tree where they have hung for about fourteen months in ripening. It is a fact not generally known that a majority of the nuts drop at night, which probably accounts for the small loss of life by cocoanuts falling upon the heads of the natives."

"The action of the heavy dew at night loosens the seal with which nature has provided the nut and allows it to fall. The nuts wanted for planting are either gathered into heaps or placed under sheds, where they are allowed to sprout before planting in order that good, healthy nuts may be selected, thus avoiding the possibility of planting 'blind' nuts that will not sprout, in which case much time would be lost in starting the coconut walks, as the orchards are called. When holes are dug, about three feet deep and twenty feet apart, the nut is carefully placed therein and covered with about a foot of soil. The hole is filled as the sprout grows until the latter reaches the surface, then it is left to itself, requiring no further attention. Should the place where the coconut is planted be any great distance from the seashore a quantity of salt is placed in the hole. The plant will grow in luxuriance, however, but a short distance from the shore, nearness to salt water being absolutely essential to its welfare."—Washington Herald.

MAKING STEAM WORK.

Unfortunate Inventors Who Antedated James Watt.

James Watt took out a patent on his steam engine in 1769, but as far back as 1543 there was a captain in Spain who constructed a vessel of 200 tons and propelled it at Barcelona in the presence of the Emperor Charles V. and his court by an engine, the construction of which he kept a secret. But an old document says that in it was a monster caldron of water and that there were two movable wheels on the outside of the vessel. The emperor was satisfied with its operation, but the treasurer of the kingdom objected to it, and so no encouragement was given to the enterprise. The poor inventor, whose name was Blas de Guere, wearing and disgusted at the want of patronage, took the engine out of the vessel, and the secret of the machine was buried in his grave.

The incident was almost duplicated in France a century later. The famous Marianne de l'Orme, a celebrated Frenchwoman, who lived to be 134 years old, told in a letter to an admirer, dated 1641, of a man confined in a madhouse of Paris for urging that anything could be done by the force of steam. The man's name was Solomon de Coste, a native of Normandy, and it was because he had persistently followed Cardinal Richelieu, imploring him to take an interest in his invention, that he was put behind bars.—Kansas City Star.

Browning a Great Talker.

If Lord Houghton talked more than most people he certainly was eclipsed by Mr. Browning, who spoke louder and with greater persistency than any one I have ever come across in my life. Although I had known him as a girl, we did not renew our acquaintance until after my marriage, when I saw a great deal of him, as he constantly came to our house. He dined with us often and used to come and see me generally every Sunday afternoon. He was very agreeable and kind, and, although I was never one of his devoted followers and often told him I had never been able to read a line of his poetry, he still continued his friendship with me. I think most people feared rather than loved him—certainly men did, but women adore poets, and they worshiped Mr. Browning.—From Lady St. Heller's "Memories."

Forgot His Own Tongue.

A traveler in arctic Siberia, Mr. Vanderlip, a gold hunter, told the following of his return to civilization: "I found that half a dozen of the officers and men of the steamer which my employers had sent for me had come to hunt me up. The captain dismounted, and I tried to address him in Russian, but he said, 'You forget that I speak English.' Now, it may seem scarcely credible, and yet it is true, that for a few moments I was totally unable to converse with him in my native tongue. I had not used a word of it in conversation for months, and my low physical condition acting on my nerves confused my mind, and I spoke a jumble of English, Russian and Korak. It was a week before I could talk good, straight English again."

Potato Scones.

To bake potato scones sift a cupful and a half of flour with a half teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and rub in three tablespoonfuls of shortening. Add one cupful of light, freshly mashed potatoes, add one well beaten egg and enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll out half an inch thick, cut and bake on a hot griddle or in a hot oven. Serve very hot, with plenty of butter.—Suburbanite.

A Wise Guy.

"Gustav's letters to me are exceedingly dull and commonplace," said one fair girl.

"Don't you know why?" responded the other.

"No."

"Gustav once served on the jury in a breach of promise case."—Washington Star.

TIMELY HINTS FOR FARMERS

Flaxseed For Skimmilk Calves.

We have found that flaxseed is the best substitute that can be used to replace butter fat removed by the cream separator, writes H. E. McCartney in Farm and Fireside. Flaxseed has all the qualities demanded of such a substitute. It is high in oil or fat. It is very palatable, and its effect on the calf's digestive system is beneficial.

To prepare flaxseed for this use is a very simple process. Simply boil it in about four times its bulk in water. The boiling is to be continued until the whole seeds have burst, after which it will be a jellylike mass. Enough may be prepared at one time to last for several days, as it is not liable to spoil.

About a half teaspoonful should be fed to each calf. This is measured out and mixed with the calf's allowance of milk just before feeding time. Flaxseed fed in this way makes a wonderful difference in the growth and appearance of the skimmilk calf. However, it will not entirely take the place of the butter fat. The skimmilk calf even at its best will not grow as rapidly or mature as early as the one that suckles its dam, yet in nearly all cases it is more profitable to milk the cow and raise the calf by hand.

Poultry on the Farm.

On every farm poultry should not only have a place, but a prominent place. There should be a good house, proper equipment and a good flock of pure bred fowls. One hundred to 200 fowls is not too many for a farm of average size.

The fields and garden produce a large quantity of food for fowls that would not otherwise be utilized, while the farm poultry establishment opens a way for the farm boy and girl to make a little money out of a work that is a nature study. Interesting and profitable as well, and it is one of the few kinds of employment they can get into that will not tax their physical strength. Properly handled, the farm flock can be made far more profitable than it is now, though on a good many farms the poultry is already paying large profits over expenses of establishment, care and feed.

Treatment of Wound by Nail.

In case the horse or cow has stepped on a nail, clean the wound as well as possible and then wash it out with a 25 per cent solution of carbolic acid. After this has been done stop up the opening with cotton saturated with turpentine. If this remedy is used at once it will prevent an attack of lock-jaw.

SUITABLE CROPS FOR HOG PASTURES.

Rape and Rye Furnish Excellent Fall Forage.

Clover pastures, which are much the most common of the hog pastures in the corn belt, furnish very large amounts of excellent forage during part of the season. They can be used fairly early in the spring and continue growing until per-aps in July, when the weather becomes hot and dry, when they are very likely to cease growing and become so woody and hard that hogs will not readily eat the clover. Farmers should guard against this condition by providing some different green feed for late summer and autumn.

There are several crops which may be planted for late summer pasture which will furnish fresh succulent green feed for all seasons of the year. One of the most valuable of these is rape. This may be sown broadcast in the cornfields at the last cultivation at the rate of three to five pounds of seed per acre and by early autumn will have made a growth to furnish pasture of an excellent quality. Rape is another crop the possibilities of which are greatly neglected. If sown late in the summer or early fall it will grow up so that it may be pastured late in the fall and during the winter, will furnish a lot of feed in the spring and still produce a grain crop the following summer. Millet, Kafir corn and the various varieties of sorghum can also be used for this purpose with excellent results. There is no section of the country which is adapted to hog raising which will not produce some of these pasture crops so necessary to the economical growing of hogs as well as to the greatest growth and flesh development of the animals.—Kansas Farmer.

Spray the Cows.

It's an excellent and profitable plan to begin spraying the cows early in the season, before the flies are so numerous. The hair and skin of the animals thus become so saturated with the spraying solution that the fight against the flies will be more successful from the start.

Wood Ashes For Hogs.

Keep a small box of wood ashes or charcoal where the hogs can get at it. It will do wonders toward keeping them healthy and their digestions strong. A little attention to matters of this kind will result in a more thrifty growth and quicker fattening.

SHOES IN JAPAN.

A Man Will Wear Out From Eight to Ten Pairs a Year.

The shops and booths of Japan are of unending interest. Here the greengrocer and fruit seller has arranged his wares till it seems as though one looked upon a great banquet. There the flower shop blazes in brilliance and the lantern maker squats at his multi-colored task. At the next entrance we perhaps see a man severing chicken meat from the bone, and he performs the operation as skillfully as the surgeon with his dissecting knife. Beef and chicken are commonly sold in this fashion.

Two or three paces further on one is confronted with a typical Japanese shoe store. All the footwear of the little brown man is here on view. The geta (wooden clogs) and straw sandals are indeed a fanciful exhibition. They line the benches, the floors, the shelves. They hang from above and seemingly are everywhere, allowing the seller just about enough room to squat on his mat. The newcomer is at once startled at the immense quantity of this simple footwear and the many places where it is sold, but he soon finds a solution to his query when he hears that a Japanese man annually makes away with from eight to ten pairs.—Christian Herald.

SIZE OF WHALES.

Length of the Biggest Ones and the Height They Can Spout.

A government official who has made a special study of whales states that the average length of a full grown sulphur bottom whale is just under eighty feet. This estimate disregards the exaggerated reports sometimes spread by sailors and is based on actual measurements of many individual specimens. There seem to be credible accounts of whales reaching a length of from eighty-five to ninety-five feet, but the authority quoted has never seen any of that size.

Whales appear to grow with great rapidity, the length of yearlings being estimated at from thirty to thirty-five feet.

How high can whales spout? Photographs taken by the scientist referred to give a means of measuring with some accuracy the height to which the water is thrown. This appears to be much less than it has often been supposed to be. It is claimed that even the great sulphur bottom whale on the average spouts to a height of only fourteen feet, although occasionally the height may be as much as twenty feet.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Just Beast.

In the days when the late archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Frederick Temple, was master of Rugby he sentenced to expulsion a boy who was innocent of the offense charged against him, but who could not clear himself without exposing the real offender. The lad made up his mind to bear the punishment and wrote to his father saying that he was sure his family would rather have him expelled than know him to be a sneak. The father promptly sent the letter to Dr. Temple, calling attention to a postscript in which the boy said he wished the doctor to understand the matter and added, "Temple is a beast, but he is a just beast." It is on record that Temple did understand, and the boy was not expelled. Dr. Temple, grim old man that he was, was always proud of the title "a just beast."

Good Shooting.

The story below of certain Virginia mountaineers whose patriotism was only equaled by their marksmanship, is one told by C. K. Bolton in the American Historical Review.

In 1775 500 recruits were needed, but many more came forward, and the commanding officer decided on a shooting match to determine their proficiency. A board one foot square, bearing a chalk outline of a nose, was nailed to a tree at a distance of 150 yards. Those who came

THE TICKET AND THE PLATFORM.

The more the work of the Democratic Convention is studied the more it appeals to thinking people every where. The platform adopted was an expression of the will of the Democrats of the State, the majority of delegates believing that the party should take an advanced stand on all public questions. It would have been an easy matter for the candidates to have dodged every troublesome issue that the campaign presents, but they boldly faced every situation, and frankly and sincerely put themselves on record so that there could be no question where they stand. Even the highest court in the land finds itself divided on important questions of law, and it naturally follows that more than a thousand delegates from every section of the State, all influenced by the condition of affairs in their particular locality, should hold different views on public questions. But after a thorough discussion in the Committee on Resolutions and upon the floor of the Convention, the majority of the Democrats adopted the platform that becomes the party doctrine and every true Democrat must feel himself bound to support it.

The rule of the majority is a Democratic doctrine as old as the party itself. In no other way can the party speak, and after it has once spoken, its enunciation becomes the inviolate law. Men will naturally differ as to what is wise or unwise in a strenuous campaign for high offices. If there were unanimity of opinion there would be no interest, and the party would die of inaction. Vigorous discussion is necessary to not only reveal the merits, but the demerits of vexed questions of public policy. A man feels better when he has fought a matter out with his friend or his enemy, and generous men are always willing to concede victory to the man who has overthrown them.

When the personal feeling that is always shown in political assemblages dies out, and it is happily already on the wane, there can be but one opinion about the State platform and the nominees of the Democratic party, and that is, that together they form the strongest argument ever made for Democratic success.

GOVERNOR WILLSON AN EXPENSIVE ORNAMENT.

The wanderings of Gov. Augustus E. Willson prove embarrassing to his fellow Republicans of the State ticket when they realize that his neglect of duty is daily making votes for the Democrats. The official record shows that he has been absent from Frankfort 239 days in the last three years and a half. He is now on his way to Wequetonsing for an additional thirty days vacation, and it is safe to predict that before his term expires he will have spent 300 days away from his post of duty. Every day that he is absent, the State pays him $20.00 in addition to the $10.00 that the Lieutenant-Governor draws for acting as Governor. In other words, Governor Willson will draw from the Treasury $6,000 for services he never rendered, and acting Governor Cox will draw $3,000 additional for doing Willson's work.

This is the sort of extravagance and neglect that the Republican State Convention endorsed when it announced its approval of Governor Willson's Administration.

Judge O'Rear says he stands on every plank of that platform, and necessarily he endorses the expensive wanderings of Augustus the 1st, and thank God, the last.

Judge O'Rear has forgotten to tell the voters just how he is going to jam through the Legislature all the various half-baked measures that are forming in his brain, when nineteen of the hold-over senators, just one-half the Senate membership, are Democrats, with the probability that the Democratic majority in both houses will be over one hundred. They have the votes in the Legislature to carry out the wishes of the people, expressed at the polls, and they have candidates who will redeem their platform pledges to the letter. If by any catastrophe O'Rear happened to be elected Governor, he would have to sit in the Governor's office for four years, and do nothing but suck his thumbs and appoint notaries public.

The Democrats are fortunate in having as their candidate for Lieutenant Governor Edward J. McDermott, of Louisville. He is a man of proved ability and of the highest character. He has labored unselfishly for the improvement and advancement of Kentucky. His voice has been lifted in many states, and before vast audiences, in behalf of his people, and wherever he has gone he has been listened to with rapt attention, for he is an orator of the first rank. As presiding officer of the Senate, he will decide every question that comes before him with absolute fairness.

The canvass for State offices has scarcely begun, but from reports sent in to Democratic headquarters, the indications point to a sweeping victory for McCreary and the entire ticket. Judge O'Rear has been speaking for over two weeks, and if he has created any enthusiasm in his interest it has not been discovered. The fact is, the judge has been talking too much, and instead of making votes, he has been losing them. While the Judge has been talking McCreary has been chopping wood, but he let the chips fly Monday at Bowling Green, and from now on there will be something doing.

When Willson's administration found itself in a hole, his Board of Equalization increased the farm lands of the State for assessment purposes $61,000,000. What has Judge O'Rear to say on this subject? He agrees with the Republican platform that Willson gave the tax-payers a wise and economical administration.

Governor James B. McCreary has served the people of his state for many years, filling the highest positions in their gift. He has never betrayed them. He has always been faithful, capable and industrious. They know that they can trust him. The shafts of envy and malice hurled by his enemies fall broken at his feet.

In raising money for the Lincoln Way, Hardin county, in two weeks, raised $41,000, which practically assures the route via Elizabethtown. One of the most active workers for the success of this movement is Mr. H. A. Sommers, Editor of the Elizabethtown News.

Hon. Ben Johnson is the first Congressman to take a flight in an aeroplane. On Tuesday of last week at Washington, he took passage with Lieut. Harry Arnold, and ascended 600 feet. The wind was high, and the machine narrowly escaped upsetting.

The recent storm in the South did great damage to property and a number of persons were killed. The loss of life near Charleston, South Carolina, was eleven, and scores were injured. All traffic was stopped for several days.

Governor Willson spent, in three years and a half over $270,000 on the State militia.

Roger Q. Mills, a former United States Senator, died at his Texas home last Saturday.

The opening speech of Senator McCreary will be published in The News next week. A great and enthusiastic crowd heard it.

GOOD LIVER REMEDY FREE

When you suffer from any form of indigestion it is always well to take something for the liver, as usually the trouble lies there. If you are bilious, have a bloated feeling after eating, if you belch, if your skin is yellowish you may be sure it is liver trouble.

What you need is something to stir up the liver, to arouse the gastric juices so that they will aid in the digestion of your food. A very good remedy for this, and one highly recommended by those who have used it, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can obtain of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. But if you have any doubt about its merits, and would prefer to try it first, send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly send you a free sample bottle.

Thousands of people first learned of this remarkable cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles through a free sample. Mrs. Frank Lilly of Plainview, Ill., sent for one and it cured her and she is open in saying that she will never take pills or strong cathartics again, as Syrup Pepsin acts so mildly. Mr. W. L. Bryant, the Postmaster at Sardis, Tenn., says he will never be without it again. No sick person can afford to ignore a remedy so highly endorsed as this. It is good for all the family from infancy to old age, because it is mild, free from gripping and yet promptly effective. Furthermore, results are absolutely guaranteed or money will be refunded.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

SIGNATURE EXPERTS.

Bank Clerks That Can't Be Deceived by Names on Checks.

A number of the larger banking institutions employ from one to half a dozen men whose sole duty is to examine every check that comes in through the clearing house and vouch for the genuineness of the signatures.

To the ordinary citizen it seems nothing short of marvelous that a signature clerk will instantly recognize the slightest alteration in a signature, with thousands of checks passing through his hands each day, many of them drawn by depositors who sign but a few checks in the course of a year, but an expert signature clerk can carry in his mind accurate photographs of 5,000 or more signatures and rarely has to refer to the signature book. When not engaged with the incoming checks the signature expert spends his time in familiarizing himself with the signatures of new customers. There is no room for uncertainty in his business, for if he passes a bogus draft it will mean a bad mark against him when promotions are in order, and to refuse payment on a genuine check means a very wrathful customer.

The signature clerk is also required to see that no checks are post dated and to look for checks on which payment has been stopped.

In proportion to the number of checks paid by a large bank every business day the smallness of the number of bad ones that slip through is nothing short of marvelous.—Harper's Weekly.

BASEBALL INSTINCT.

It Takes Quick Thinking Players to Make a Successful Team.

The greatest difficulty in building up ball teams in this day, when the game has become a business as well as a sport, is in securing what we know as "thinking ball players." There are any number of ball players in the minor leagues who have natural physical ability, but it is very rarely possible to secure men who have that peculiar faculty of being able to think and act simultaneously.

It is no reflection on a ball player's general intelligence to say that he hasn't that quality. I know scores of players who are men of unusual intellect, but who are lacking in that ability to think and act at the same time. Give them a few minutes to consider a problem, and they will arrive at a conclusion that is quite logical, but baseball games are not won on logic. The plays that win are usually the result of impulse. It is instinct with some ball players to make the proper play at the proper time.

It would be possible to count on the fingers of the two hands the men in the league who are "quick thinking ball players." The team that is blessed with a majority of that class of players is the one that usually wins the championship. A team must have at least two thinking ball players to be a contender, and if it has four the championship is in sight.—John J. McGraw in the Metropolitan.

The First French Newspaper.

It was under Richelieu that the first newspaper received sanction and encouragement, says Thomas E. Watson in "The Story of France." Hitherto the only such thing in France had been an annual. This once a year being a somewhat sluggish news vendor, even for those times, little handbills containing news items began to circulate. A Dr. Renaudet in 1631 obtained a license from Richelieu to publish a regular weekly newspaper, and thus was founded the Gazette of France. It was very modest, consisting of four pages, each containing a single column. Louis XIII. was a frequent contributor to this first of newspapers and took special pleasure in the work. The great cardinal also wrote for it, his weakness being a fondness for literary composition.

Nantucket's Windmills.

There isn't a stream or a brook in the island of Nantucket, off the New England coast, but there are plenty of windmills, which pump water to tanks and thus supply community needs; also Nantucket possesses what is believed to be the oldest windmill for grinding corn in actual operation in America. Nathan Wilbur, a Nantucket sailor, who had seen the busy windmills of Holland as he sailed abroad, built it out of timbers of wrecked ships in 1746. There has never been a day in all the 165 years since that time when the mill has not been busy. There is always a wind to turn its outstretched wings.—New York World.

Curious.

A lady one day remarked to Bulwer Lytton how odd it was that a dove (Latin, colombe) should have been sent out to find the old world, and Columbus (Colombe) should have found the new.

"Yes," agreed the novelist, "but more curious still is the fact that one came from Noah and the other from Genoa."

Just a Little.

A Unique Ear.

"That sentence is not incorrect," said the professor, "but it sounds odd to the English speaking ear."—Harvard Lampoon.

My duty is to dare all things for a righteous end.—Byron.

THEY FOOL THE FOWL.

Wild Duck Hunters in China Are Wily in Their Methods.

A full grown wild duck is one of the most wary of all animals, and many are the devices of hunters in various parts of the world to kill or to capture it. There is one method of taking wild ducks in considerable numbers practiced in China and elsewhere in the east which is sufficiently unknown to occidentals to prove of interest.

The natives see that a large number of big calabashes, or gourds, shall always be left floating on the water frequented by the birds till they come to regard them as part and parcel of their resorts.

The duck hunter chooses his time, and, putting one of the calabashes, with holes cut for his mouth and eyes, upon his head, he wades through the lake, taking care to keep the whole of his body beneath the surface. He cautiously approaches the unsuspecting wild fowl and, catching one of them by the leg, pulls him with a sudden jerk beneath the water, causing hardly more commotion of the surface than the duck itself when it dives or splashes or plunges for its food. He wrings its neck under the water and fastens it to his belt. Then he deals with another and another in the same fashion till he makes his retreat, equally unnoticed, with a whole girde of captured wild ducks around his waist.—Exchange.

SPIDERS' WEBS.

Their Filmy Threads Have Wonderful Sustaining Power.

The strength of the spider and of the materials it employs is something almost incomprehensible when the size of the insect and the thickness of its thread are taken into account. Recent experiments have shown that a single thread of a web made by a spider which weighed fifty-four milligrams supported endwise a weight of four grams, or seventy-four times the weight of the spider itself.

When, therefore, a spider spins a web to let himself down from the ceiling or from the branch of a tree and we see him descending without perceiving his thread at all we may be perfectly sure that he is not only in no danger of falling, but that he could carry seventy-three other spiders down with him on his invisible rope.

Knowing this fact with reference to a single thread, we need not be surprised that the threads of a web, interwoven and re-enforced one by another, have a very considerable strength and are able to hold bees and wasps, themselves very powerful in proportion to their size, and to bend without breaking under a weight of dew or rain.—New York Press.

A Minor Consideration.

It was often remarked by the relatives of Uncle Gideon Dobbs that he was a most delightful person to whom to confide a cherished ambition or display an achievement. Whether Uncle Gideon understood fully or not, he was always ready with sympathy, admiration or encouragement.

When the family received the summons to inspect young Franklin Dobbs' invention, the mysterious work which had occupied him for nearly a year, Uncle Gideon was all enthusiasm. He entered the room where the invention, a thing of many small wheels and bars, was placed on a heavy table, stepped up to his nephew and wrung his hand.

"You've done something to be proud of, my boy," he said cordially. "Look at all those little wheels, each in its proper place and all running like clockwork. It's a perfect success, my boy, a perfect success. What's it for?"—Youth's Companion.

Diversity of Language.

E. B. Taylor in his "Anthropology" says: "Language is one branch of the great art of sign making or sign choosing, and its business is to hit upon some sound as a suitable sign or symbol for each thought. Whenever a sound has been thus chosen there was no doubt a reason for the choice, but it did not follow that each language should choose the same sound." Thus we have the root explanation of the great puzzle of diversity of language. Originally a matter of sound, language varies with the thing by which it is suggested, and hence the babel of tongues found in our human speech.

Health and Wealth.

Health is the foundation of the world's prosperity. Wealth is the result of the tools of health. A strong, enduring body is good capital to begin business with. A sound mind and good judgment add greatly to its value. Possessed of these, a man may earn a living and enjoy it when earned.

How He Felt.

Bearit—Bullem has failed for half a million and his creditors will get about fifty thousand. Lambleigh—How does he feel about it? Bearit—Sore, of course. Fifty thousand is a lot of money to give up.—Exchange.

Injury and Insult.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

The Famous Case of Lesurques of the Lyons Mail.

The most famous of all cases of mistaken identity is that of Lesurques charged with the robbery and murder of the courier of the Lyons mail, the incidents of which were woven into the old dramatic play "The Lyons Mail."

Lesurques was positively identified as a man who had traveled by the mail coach, and he was in due course convicted. Yet at the eleventh hour a woman came into court and declared his innocence, swearing that the witnesses had mistaken him for another, Duboscq, whom he greatly resembled. She was the confidant of one of the gang who had planned and carried out the robbery. But her testimony, although corroborated by other confederates, was rejected, and Lesurques received sentence of death. Lesurques died protesting his innocence to the last. Four years elapsed before Duboscq was captured. In the interval others of the gang had passed through the hands of the police, but the prime mover was only now taken. Even then he twice escaped from prison. When finally he was put on his trial and the judge ordered a fair wig, such as Lesurques had worn, to be placed on his head, the strange likeness was immediately apparent. He denied his guilt, but was convicted and guillotined. Thus two men suffered for one offense.

PREHISTORIC ANIMALS.

Rocks in Which They Are Preserved Denote Their Age.

Fossil remains of prehistoric animals would not have been preserved and handed down to us through all the ages had these remains been exposed to the air.

Fortunately for the scientists of today, when these animals perished the rock which holds their remains was merely soft mud or drifting sand. It encompassed the carcass of the animal, held it tight from air and water and during the intervening ages passed through the various processes until it became solid rock.

Some of these remains, even those of the oldest animals, have been discovered quite close to the surface. This is because the crust of the earth is like a paper wrapping, folding and crumbling under the pressure of the gases and fire of the interior, with the result that here and there the crust has been turned upside down, so that the lower strata of rock are on top.

And it is the particular stratum of rock that reveals the approximate age of the animal. Geologists, on examination, can tell the age of the rock, which gives them the date at which the animal flourished.—London Strand Magazine.

Bending of Great Guns.

Among the problems with which army and navy engineers have to deal nowadays is that of the drooping of the muzzles of excessively long guns under the stress of their own weight. Experiments have shown that wire wound guns of twelve inch caliber and fifty feet length droop at the muzzle about four and a half minutes of arc, while built up solid guns of the same size droop about two and a half minutes. Differences of temperature in the body of the gun also cause bendings, which may either increase the droop at the muzzle or counteract it, according as it is the upper or under part of the gun that has the higher temperature. In consequence of these distortions projectiles on leaving a gun have a wobbly motion, continuing up to 500 yards, and probably more.

Frightened to It.

It was quite a fashionable bridge party, and one of the players was a small, nervous young thing, not sure of any of her plays and fearfully afraid of her partner, a living proof of the existence of that much discussed creature, the "bridge fiend."

"I returns your lead then," said the other player frigidly, "and I am sure we would not have lost if you had discarded correctly. Would you mind telling me what you have been discarding from—strength or weakness?"

The nervous young thing lifted her eyes with a flash of spirit.

"From fright," she said candidly.—Philadelphia Times.

A Hint For the Flatterer.

"She rejected him, then?"

"Yes."

"He used to praise her beauty in glowing terms. I should think that would have made her fall in love with him."

"It made her fall in love with herself, and she hasn't had room for a thought about anybody else."

The Wife's Work.

The man who makes his wife get up in the morning to start the fires at last saved enough money to buy an automobile. One day while going up a hill the machine stopped.

"You'll have to get out and push, Fannie," he said, "because I've got to stay here and guide it."—Lippincott's.

Beating Furniture.

To beat furniture put damp unlinty cloths over the upholstered parts and beat until they are black with dust, then turn to the other side. Continue with fresh cloths until no more dust shows.

Cut Rather Low.

"Do you notice how the color of this dress matches my eyes?"

"Yes; and I also notice how the cut of it matches that sore throat you have."—Washington Herald.

Don't Suffer!

"I had been troubled, a little, for nearly 7 years," writes Mrs. L. Fincher, in a letter from Peavy, Ala., "but I was not taken down, until March, when I went to bed and had to have a doctor. He did all he could for me, but I got no better. I hurt all over, and I could not rest. At last, I tried Cardui, and soon I began to improve. Now I am in very good health, and able to do all my housework."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

You may wonder why Cardui is so successful, after other remedies have failed. The answer is that Cardui is successful, because it is composed of scientific ingredients, that act curatively on the womanly system. It is a medicine for women, and for women only. It builds, strengthens, and restores weak and ailing women, to health and happiness.

If you suffer like Mrs. Fincher did, take Cardui. It will surely do for you, what it did for her. At all druggists.

Smut in Wheat.

The millers of Kentucky are complaining considerably of the quality of much of the wheat offered this year, a year when conditions were extremely favorable for producing wheat of a very high grade. The presence of stinking smut is one of the causes of complaint, and reports indicate that many crops in all parts of the state were affected with this disease. Director Seonell of the experiment station says "stinking" smut can be so easily and cheaply controlled that its presence in a field of wheat is a sure indication of carelessness on the part of the owner. A special bulletin giving formulas for treatment has been issued by that department.

White Population Gaining.

The white population is gaining on the negro in the South. In the nine cotton states the white increase during the last ten years was 46.6 per cent.

While the colored increase was but 30 per cent. This was the relative rate in the cities. The disparity in the county districts was even greater. Ten years ago the gain of the two races was about equal, but the last census shows that for the rural districts of the South the white gain during the last decade was 17.3 per cent., and the negro but 8.3 per cent.

Colored men are leaving the rural districts in such numbers that the planters no longer look to them as the source of labor. But for the black to leave the country and migrate to the city is a movement out of the frying pan into the fire. He cannot compete with the white man in the congested centers of population.

though the labor of whites be unskilled like his own. As the blacks move to the cities the death rate among them rises rapidly, is this, to be the solution of the vexed race question? —Ex.

Obligations are seldom if ever one sided.

It should be the aim of all to give the girls just as broad a business education as the boys. It makes them capable of taking care of the family if such responsibilities are placed upon them. It broadens their ideas and makes them nobler and better.

Girls, as a rule, are fully as clearheaded as boys when young; but if, as is the common practice, the girls are brought up to do nothing, to think of but little except dress and amusements, they fall far behind the young man at the age of twenty in mental ability.

Gov. Wilson Thursday pardoned Joe Finley, a former resident of Grant county, who was indicted in that county for unlawfully selling pooled tobacco. The Executive said that Finley was forced into the pool and that vicious lawlessness had forced Finley to sell his farm and leave Kentucky.

BALLET DANCERS.

Long Training and a Ceaseless Grind of Hard Work Are Theirs.

The modern imperial ballet schools of St. Petersburg and Moscow are under government control, forming, with the theaters and dramatic schools, a department of the ministry of the court. Pupils, both male and female, are entered at the early age of ten years—seldom older. After the necessary nomination has been obtained—by no means an easy matter nowadays—a stringent examination regarding health, strength, beauty of form and natural gracefulness has to be passed before the child is finally accepted. From the time it becomes an inmate the whole of its education, secular and artistic, is taken in hand, and some years of training are necessary before it is considered ripe to appear in public.

The dancer's life is a ceaseless round of hard work. All, even great artists, when at home take regular daily lessons in addition to the daily rehearsals for the next performance which are demanded, however old and well known the ballet. Thus an average of five to six hours' dancing a day is rather the rule than the exception, popular ballerinas in demand at charity performances and artists at homes often dancing as much as eight hours in the twenty-four.

Trained artists are kept to design in every detail of period and subject, the dresses, scenery and accessories—a task obviously requiring much imagination and much knowledge—and often as many as 150 personages appear on the stage at the same time. Even the orchestra leaders qualify especially for ballet music, having no place in the orchestra at any other time.—London World.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION.

To Catch a Glimpse of It Just Get Delirium Tremens.

The majority of us are like brutes. We believe but in the reality of things. Science, more hospitable, acknowledges the fourth dimension and with it the constant parade before our eyes of things and events ordinarily unseen. The phenomena of delirium tremens forms a case in point. The shapes which the layman believes the patient only imagines are really seen and are rendered visible through the excitation of the pineal gland, which now is the rudimentary organ of what once was psychic vision. Alcohol stimulates this gland. The drunkard in his aftercups sees with it the hideousness of shapes which his own hideousness has attracted to him. For they are there, or rather, they are here, about us in the fourth dimension, precisely as there are other shapes as gracious as these are revolting. Only ordinarily we do not see them. There are, though, those who can and do, and without being drunkards either.

Thinkers as sober as Jevons and Babbage go a bit further. They will, if you let them, tell you that whatever occurs in the privacy of a room remains photographed in it. A mere extension of this enables oculists to say that nothing has ever occurred anywhere which is not also photographed; that in the ether above us is the great picture gallery of the world. In India, at Adyar, the chief lieu of theosophy, this gallery is constantly being studied. The results, occasionally bizarre, are sometimes trivial. It has been found that Herbert Spencer was Aristotle; Gladstone, Cicero; Tennyson, Ovid.—Edgar Saltus in Forum.

Opened His Eyes to the Future.

"Dickie, I'm awfully sorry you use tobacco, I don't like it, and mamma simply loathes it. Will you stop when we are married?"

"Isn't that asking a lot, dearie?" asked Dick.

"I wouldn't care for myself," answered the girl, "but you know it makes mamma deathly sick."

"Well, then," he promised cheerfully.

"I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll never smoke when your mamma is with us."

She threw her arms around him.

"Darling," she murmured, "that's so good of you. I was afraid you'd insist on smoking once in a while after we were married!"—New York Globe.

The Iron Cross.

The Iron Cross, an order of knighthood, was established by Frederick William III. of Prussia in March, 1813. The order was founded in order to honor patriotic bravery in the war against France. It was revived by Emperor William I. during the Franco-Prussian war and awarded by him to his son for his great victory at Wissembourg on Aug. 4, 1870. Later on the order was bestowed most generously, some 40,000 persons being decorated between 1870 and 1872.

Mr. Cleo Shirrell and wife, of Lebanon, spent a few days in this community last week visiting their father and family. Mr. Shirrell informed us that he was thinking of working insurance, if he accepted a position he had made him he would locate at Campbellsville. Mr. Shirrell has made a success at all of his undertakings and we predict if he should engage into the insurance business he will make a success at it.

Your reporter had the pleasure of calling in at the home of Mr. J. H. Smith one of our best farmers and business men in this section and a man that will act on the square in all of his dealings with you a few days ago, and we must say right here that Mr. Smith has ten acres of as fine tobacco growing as ever grew in this section of Adair county. He admitted that his growing crop at this time is far superior to his crop last season at this time. From the appearance of his corn and cane crop it could not be much better, we take it from the prospects at this time that we will make plenty of corn to do us in this part of old Adair, and the tobacco is far beyond what was expected several weeks ago.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1911

The Following Real Estate:

FLOUR MILL of 75-Barrel Capacity. This Mill has 4 stands of rolls, is run by steam power and makes as good flour and meal as can be made. It is located on the Q. & C. railroad at McKinney, Ky., 15 miles South of Danville, and 30 miles north of Somerset, with a spur running to the mill from the main line. Without fear of contradiction I say we have the best market for feed in the State and the best located roller mill.

The mill is five stories high and has just recently been equipped with the most modern machinery from top to bottom. We have an abundant supply of never failing water. It has a large scale for weighing wagon and team, coal shed, a good barn, and has adjoining it a nice piece of building land with a fine cistern, a well and a concrete cellar on it. I will divide the land and sell it separately or will sell the two as a whole.

This sale will take place the day following the sale of the beautiful 150 acre farm of A. D. Root.

We have six daily trains and anyone to see this property can get off any of these trains at McKinney and find us without trouble.

Editor News:—

When we left Columbia the last of February 1909, I promised to write to your paper some time, and as I can't write to all of my friends in Adair and Metcalfe counties, I take this method of saying hello, to all of you.

Well, we got home in Bethany all right. We came by way of Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis, Mo., then over the Wabash R. R., to Darlington, Mo., then northeast seventeen miles, to Bethany, so we are in northwest Missouri.

Last year crops were great, but this year it was cool and wet till crops were late planted, but it turned dry in June, and we had no rain from June the 16th to 22nd, so gardens and early corn were very short, but we have had plenty of rain since July the 22nd. Hay was very short, oats and wheat good, and corn on low land is great, but light on upland. Corn is 60 cents per bushel, hay twelve dollars per ton. We had a fair crop of apples and a half crop of peaches. There have been 123 cars of stock shipped from here this year, mostly hogs at fair prices. It has been very hot here, but more pleasant for the past week.

Times are rather dull. Wages are from $1 to $1.50 per day and board yourself.

As wife takes the News, we are always eager for Friday to come so we can read it for it is like a letter from home, as she was born and reared at Dirigo, Ky., and I was born four miles east of Edmonton. I was a member of Co., D. 13th Kentucky Infantry, from September 1861 to January 1865, so as I was always at the frontier, I was out in hospital, so of course I burned some powder and killed some hogs and chickens.

I see in your paper that a few of the old boys had a reunion at Weed. How I would have loved to have been with them, but so many of them have answered the last roll call, even since I left Kentucky. There is James R. England, of Sparkesville, John M. Wilson, of Gradyville, Wm. R. Willis, of Columbia, and many others, but it is all right if we are ready to go.
